Interesting:

Just got off the phone with Zintek. He was saying they have been working with Ft. Meade R3 lab and also the OPPT lab trying to validate a LC/MS method. Ft. Meade has been using the method on some samples, and it seems to sort of work, but they need another lab to validate the method, because it has never been validated. They wanted OPPT to validate the method, but it will not work on their instrument. Larry went to Ft. Meade to try to see what the problem was. They basically tore down the OPPT instrument and cleaned it and put back together, but it still is not working well. They think Ft. Meade R3 instrument works because they have never ran dirty samples on it before and it is new. Larry is trying to see if the method works on his R5 instrument.

And oh . . . by the way. The samples that R3 lab has been using this unvalidated method on is for the alcohol and glycol analysis for Dimock samples. Oooooo kkkkk.

Schatzi Fitz-James---05/03/2012 09:50:53 AM---of course. wonder where they will travel this year? ask kuda as he usually has the scoop.
